Everyone at URS hopes all have a happy & safe Halloween!

If you are planning on limiting the candy intake for the children- make sure you keep aware of the expiration dates. Many hard candies have a year or longer shelf life, but those softer candies tend to expire more quickly, especially chocolate candy. Remove `discolored` candy as it is likely not edible, discard `sticky` or those that have a `grainy feel` as it, too, is likely past its expiration date - so toss it!

Q & A

Q: How long does it take to get credentialed?

A: First an application needs to be submitted and it is imperative the application be filled out in detail with regard to dates (month and year), addresses, and contact information. In most cases it takes a minimum of 90 days but some cases can take up to 6 months. This is because the physician needs to submit all information so we can accurately put it into the database, as well as waiting for the insurance companies to approve the physician.
